CHAPTER 6: RECOMMENDATIONS AND CONCLUSIONS OF THE MINI PROJECT

Recommendation

As the study, it has shown that the participatory development approach is able to reflect the people's needs and effective for formulating the master plan to make it more realistic than the top-down approach. Based on such experience, that recommends to be introduced for formulating some ~~other~~ literature issues and learned have been noted these experience further process of participatory development planning is recommended as follows.

conclusion

There are multiple supply and demand related factors which affected vegetables from different sources. Even though the transportation costs. An analysis of this survey shows the main two sources of vegetables at open markets to be open markets as indicated by 40% of the interviewed by open market from small small medium farms. The heavy contribution of source vegetables probably to either subsidiary 'farms' or 'open' (small) source from open markets.
